STUDIES IN REPUBLICANISM.
THE REPUBLICAN PARTY. Its History, Principles and Politics. Edited by the Hon. John D. Long. $2.00. The M. W. Hazen Company.

As a concise yet substantial history of the Republican party, this book has, as is claimed for it in the preface, a permanent value. Mr. Long contributes a history of political parties in the United States down to the year 1856, and there Edward McPherson takes up the narrative, describing the conditions out of which the Republican party rose, its wonderful growth, its subsequent record in war and peace, its attitude toward slavery and freedom, and the management of the national finances, as contrasted with the conduct of the Democratic party. The policy of the Republican party on vital questions is discussed in detail by L. E. Parsons, who writes on the public lands; E. N. Morrill on pensions; Senator Frye on fisheries; Senator Chandler on the Navy; Senator Hawley on coast defenses; Congressman Dingley on the merchant marine; J. C. Burrows on foreign trade; Green B. Raum on internal revenue; Governor McKinley on the tariff; Mr. Butterworth on internal development; Henry Cabot Lodge on the civil service; John S. Wise on the New South; ex-Senator Ingalls on honesty in elections, and Senator Hawley on the future of the party. Though a number of the papers refer to conditions which immediately followed the last Democratic Administration, they are pertinent to the matters that are still in controversy between the parties, and one might look far before he could find so much useful political knowledge in a single book. These chapters are followed by a review of the party's history since 1888, brief biographies of President Harrison and Mr. Whitelaw Reid, and an account of the Republican League, by James W. Foster. The volume is illustrated with a number of portraits.

COLUMBUS.

Mr. Thomas Whittaker, No. 2 Biblio House, New-York, has published for $1 "The Story of the Discovery of the New-World by Columbus," prepared and compiled by Frederick Saunders, the gifted librarian of the Astor Library. A literary man was asked the other day to name some work that was suited to family which would give a simple and intelligent account of the discovery of America. He thought of Columbus. He looked through his own library, and then in the catalogues, and at last admitted that there was nothing he could name that would be suitable. Mr. Whittaker, however, suggested this want and made provision for it, and the little book thus furnished should be in the possession of every family.—(The Journal of Commerce).
